HIGH SPEED COMMUNICATIONS AGREEMENT REACHED WITH OCCIDENTAL ENTERTAINMENT GROUP HOLDINGS AND NETWORK INTERNATIONAL SOLUTIONS

The First High Speed Multimedia Network for Major Studio Operations

HOLLYWOOD, California; May 04, 2005 — Network International Solutions, Inc. (NIS), a New York-based high-speed, secure, private networking service company, and Occidental Entertainment Group Holdings, Inc., a leading entertainment production facility and services organization, have reached an exclusive agreement for high-speed multimedia telecommunications for all of Occidental's facilities and studios.

“Today's announcement is in keeping with our company's intentions to best service the needs of our clients and tenants in an every-changing technology-driven market” said Craig Darian, CEO of Occidental Entertainment Group Holdings. “Entertainment has been making revolutionary changes from film and video tape to digital media. These technologies provide new challenges and opportunities for a communications infrastructure that can improve workflow and secure proprietary data...; while also saving our clients both time and money in overall production costs. NIS has a long history of providing secure private networks and will be a great trendsetter in leading the future for entertainment networks.”

NIS has a 10-year history in providing private networks in the highly secure banking and brokerage world of Wall Street. With headquarters directly across the street from the New York Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange, NIS has built secure networks in the financial industry which move transactions and information on an infrastructure without touching the public internet. That same inviolate, secure, private network philosophy has great appeal to all phases of the entertainment industry when moving hi-speed CD and DVD quality digital data.

Film Director, Randal Kleiser, (Grease, Blue Lagoon, White Fang, and the soon to be released Lovewrecked), stated “We can now view dailies from home on a private wire or wireless network and be assured that our content is secure and confidential. The new range of high-tech services being provided by Occidental and NIS make this is a very exciting time for the future of digital cinema.”

“We currently have operating prototypes that interconnect our production offices at MassMoca with Occidental’s Hollywood-based operations, and our new facilities in the lower East Village,” says Jeff Kleiser, co-founder of Kleiser-Walczak Productions and Animation (Universal’s LBE Spiderman, and animators for X-Men and The One.) Adds his partner and co-founder Diana Walczak, “Among other obvious advantages, remote collaboration will prove to be essential to our profitability.”

Services available at Occidental Entertainment Group’s many office facilities and stages will include Voice, Data and Video communications, allowing for Remote Collaboration of Data & Images, Video Conferencing, Telecom Casting Services, and Data / Video Transmission. This will be accomplished with both wired and wireless access that can bridge to all facilities and other locations as needed by the production crew. With these services, collaboration from the studio to the home, or to remote offices of key staff members, can be implemented as well.

“Our expertise in secure private networking provides us with the key ingredient to bringing a new focus of communications to the entertainment world,” said Stan Badowski, CEO of Network International Solutions. “Our global network infrastructure, technologies and operational expertise, will provide Occidental Entertainment Group with capabilities that will bridge the digital frontier of the new entertainment industry.”

Implementation of the services will begin shortly and will be in full operation by the end of the year.
